

"The threat of interest increases coming hard and fast in the early part of the year has now receded in view of what's been happening with the floods and the cyclone. But there is anticipation that interest rate increases will be coming [at some point], which probably flattens the outlook a little bit."

ROBERT PAPAleo, research director, Charter Keck Cramer